A: This is not an answer, but the problem was solved by a user because he/she posted a comment to the question. I think, the problem was that the links in the text of the answer were not dereferenced. Thank you all and sorry for it. Q: Installing intelliJ-community on windows I am struggling to install intelliJ-community on a windows machine, i have followed the instruction here and got: Java and JavaFX SDK version: 8.0.152 (build 1.8.0_151) Installation directory: C:\Program Files\JetBrains\IntelliJ IDEA Community Edition 2018.1.3 and my JDK is the following: C:\Program Files (x86)\Java\jdk-13.0.1 but when i click next, i get the error: Troubleshoot Error: Managed Windows toolchain is not available, please re-run with '--win' parameter it seems i need win specific version of java, i got a proper one, i have also uninstalled it and installed the JDK that came with intelliJ, no luck, any suggestions? A: Win toolchain is only available in Windows SDK, not in JDK. To have an 64 bit toolchain you need the 64 bit Java JDK. See Q: Meaning of "more and more coal" The following sentence is from Ash and Coal, a work on the history of mining: "We love coal. We need it. We need more and more coal," said William E. Davis, president of the American Coal Mining Association. (p.9) What does the phrase "more and more coal" mean here? The phrasing seems inconsistent in a way I can't explain. A: The usage in your quote is the opposite of normal usage of 'more'. Instead of 'more and more' it would be 'less and less' 'I need more apples' - something which is lacking 'a lot more'. 'I need less apples' - something which is

I have no idea how to interpret this message and make it work in my case. I want the arduino to turn on and off a lamp every time a button is pushed. I have tried all the codes at the end of the page, but no succes. A: It seems you have used one of the versions of Smart Home Pro that can't work with Arduino. If you are using the version 9Pro you need to update, The newest version works with Arduino and you can get it here: Smart Home Pro 9 Pro As for your question, I would say the easiest would be to use a script from arduino.cc. If you can follow an example exactly it would be easy to change it to work with arduino. I would recommend this: Arduino LED: Once you have that working, you can use it in your home projects. It will require you to read the arduino.cc instructions to get the script to work. If you need any help with the script, or need another recommendation then let me know. Good luck! Helicobacter pylori: a heterogeneous organism causing a spectrum of disease. Helicobacter pylori infection has been implicated in the pathogenesis of chronic gastritis, peptic ulcer disease, gastric lymphoma, and gastric adenocarcinoma. Despite its prevalence and worldwide distribution, there is great clinical and morphological diversity in patients infected with H. pylori. The epidemiology of this bacterium and the outcome of its infection is dependent on the virulence of the bacterial strains, host immune response, and environmental factors. Newer diagnostic techniques, including the use of DNA probes and polymerase chain reaction have not changed the therapeutic approach to H. 570a42141b
